Former senator Jorge Enrique Robledo and leader of the Dignidad Party will present this Thursday, December 7, a formal accusation against President Gustavo Petro for the alleged crime of malfeasance. The process begins with the Impeachment Committee of the House of Representatives.

The accusation of prevarication against President Petro was inspired by the announcements made by the president about the exploration and exploitation of gas and oil in the country, added to the alliances with the Venezuelan state oil company PDVSA to meet Colombia's needs in the sector .of hydrocarbons.

The filing of accusations against the Colombian head of state will take place at 10:30 a.m. this Thursday by the Commission of Accusations and Investigations of the House of Representatives, the same one that is in charge of the investigation of the irregularities that have damaged the campaign of Gustavo Petro for the Presidency in 2022.

In filing this impeachment accusation against President Petro, former Senator Robledo joined the voices of concern emerging from the hydrocarbon sector and the opposition of the Government for the determination not to search for more gas and oil deposits in the national territory and depends on the external market for the supply of hydrocarbons. This, especially when it comes to the industry of Nicolás Maduro's regime, which is accused of committing violations against Human Rights.

Analysts described President Petro's proposal for an alliance between Ecopetrol and PDVSA, which he launched in a meeting with Nicolás Maduro, as inconsistent and inconsistent. | Photo: AFP

President Petro announced an integration for the energy sector between Colombia and Venezuela after his meeting with Nicolás Maduro on November 18, where talks to merge Ecopetrol with PDVSA were made public.

The concern about Ecopetrol becoming PDVSA's partner in exploiting Venezuela's gas fields and oil fields in this process stems from the president's own statements.

In this he noted that he has "the idea of securing electrical energy in Venezuela, fossil raw materials in Colombia, perhaps, passing through Cali to Asia, ensuring the energy security of these two countries."
